Technology has the power to do many things, including changing the place we live in and the way we live too. Thanks to technological advances, space tourism will become a reality in the future. We can be taken into orbit on a pressurized capsule and admire the spectacular view in space. Companies such as Virgin Galactic, SpaceX and Blue Origin are open for space travel ticket sales. What's more, the application of robotics will be more practical in the workplace. Robots will take on dangerous, difficult and dull jobs to save us from potential risks. The result is that the tasks can be done quickly and efficiently with high precision.

With further innovations, there will be dramatic changes in transportation. Scientists expect that the idea of flying cars will come true so that drivers can avoid traffic jams in metropolitan areas. These vehicles are environmentally friendly and economical because they run mainly on solar energy. Experts hope that flying cars will be a solution to air pollution in the future world.
