Schools have different opinions about teacher gifts. In some schools, the parents' association buys each teacher a gift. In others, parents can give what they wish to teachers and other staff. Some schools provide rules for parents to follow, while others leave this completely up to the students and their families. While some families like to find the perfect gift for the teacher, others choose homemade gifts or treats. Others may look for gifts that help the teachers in the classroom.

As for what gift to choose for the teacher, consider a book. Many bookstores have a section for books to give as gifts. Books of poetry make especially good teacher's presents. And don't forget about blank books that can be used as a diary. If you are still unsure about a specific item to choose, perhaps you should get a gift card. With a gift card, you choose how much money you want to spend, and the store puts that value into the card. Then, the teacher trades the card's value for the book or another item they choose. Other places that often offer gift cards are restaurants and coffee shops, if you know a place the teacher enjoys.

Teachers often require books or DVDs that they need in their classrooms, but their school can't afford. It may be a good idea to talk with your school's librarian before buying a teacher a gift. The librarian may know what the teacher needs. These could be items for the teacher's curriculum or DVDs that support their teaching. You can also give books or DVDs to the library or pay for a magazine subscription.

Lastly, remember that a cookie and a note go a long way. The best gifts for a teacher can be kind notes written by students and their parents. Many teachers keep every single one of them. Some teachers even pin thank-you notes to their bulletin board. They look at these thoughtful notes on bad days. They are wonderful things that remind teachers why they do the hard work that they do all year. Accompanying the note with a coffee mug is a good idea. Or you can bake some cookies to go along with the note. Nothing would be sweeter.

13. What does "this" in paragraph 1 refer to?

- A. Who would receive the gift beside teachers
- B. Who would buy the gift for teachers
- C. What can be illustrated as teacher gifts
- D. What to consider about teacher gifts

14. What can teachers do with a gift card according to paragraph 2? A. Get coffee for free

- B. Order a cheaper meal
- C. Exchange it for a book
- D. Buy a book for diary

15. What do teachers NOT often do with thank-you notes that they receive? A. Save all those notes they are given
- B. Hang them where they can be seen
- C. Treat them as a source of motivation
- D. Read them with a coffee mug or cookies
16. What advice for a teacher's gift would the author most agree with?
- A. There are numerous options based on their needs and wants.
- B. Any gift is acceptable because it is the thought that counts.
- C. Something practical, like food or money, is generally the best.
- D. The gift should have a personal connection to the student giving it.
17. Which of the following is NOT suggested as a good teacher gift? A. Something that can boost the teachers' mood
- B. Something from the teachers' past experience
- C. Something that matches the teachers' preference
- D. Something practical for the teachers' instruction

- B. Doing exercises will ensure good health in one's life.
- C. Training is believed to be the best way to have good health.
- D. It can't be denied that nothing beats exercise for one's health.
19. The young boy helped himself to a watch lying on the pavement.
- A. The young boy couldn't help seeing a watch left abandoned on the pavement.
- B. When the young boy saw a watch on the pavement, he quickly asked for help.
- C. The young boy took the watch which was left abandoned on the pavement.
- D. Seeing a watch on the pavement, the young boy would definitely pick it up.
20. Though the test results were satisfactory, they felt that they could do better.
- A. Despite achieving the required results, they thought there was still room for improvement.
- B. However satisfactory the test results were, they decided to try harder next time.
- C. No matter how satisfied they were with the test results, they should have put in more effort.

D. Even though the test results were fine, they seemed disappointed with what they did.

Gợi ý:

The picture shows three people working together to plant a tree. One person is digging a hole, another one is holding a small tree ready to be put in the hole, and the third one is watching and holding another pot, maybe with another tree inside. This picture tells us that working together is important, especially when we do something good like planting trees to help our environment. It reminds us that every small action we do can make a big difference in taking care of our planet.
